2 Public Discussion Period.14-5225

Public Discussion Period

[No more than 30 minutes. This period is restricted to items not listed on the docket.]

The following persons participated on this item:

1. Edith Lam, 1108 Jefferson Street, a volunteer with the Virginia Cooperative Extension, spoke for increased awareness of the VCE and free educational program that is offered in Alexandria and Arlington.

2. Reginald Morris, 1108 Jefferson Street, staff member with the Virginia Cooperative Extension, spoke about the VCE program and providing educational outreach to the community.

3. Mimi Goff, 1313 Bishop Lane, spoke about the need and problem with overcrowding at the City schools.

4. Helen Desfosses, 400 Madison Street, Apt. 1201, chair, Alexandria Library Board, spoke about the Library budget funding.

5. Gary Carr, 216 Aspen Street, spoke in support of the restoration of the running track at George Washington Middle School and to fully fund the School Board's budget.

6. Lance Spencer, 1108 Vassar Road, representing the Clover College Park Civic Association, spoke to the dangerous high speed cut through traffic in Clover College Park for cars trying to bypass Quaker and Duke Street.

7. Julia Hart, 4515 Willard Avenue, Apt 1212S, Chevy Chase, Maryland, said she is an ACPS teacher and she spoke of funding for the City schools.

8. Stefanie Mills, 1340 Braddock Place, a teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of funding for the City schools for pre-k education.

8. Lorna Eaton, 1340 Braddock Place, a pre-k teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of funding for the pre-k education.

9. Amy Salleh, 1340 Braddock Place, a pre-school teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of pre-k funding for the schools.

10. Sarah Adams, 1005 N. Daniel Street, Arlington, a pre-school teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of pre-k funding for the schools.

11. Beth Pellowitz, 1340 Braddock Place, an early childhood special education teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of pre-k funding for the schools.

12. Molly McCabe, 1340 Braddock Place, a kindergarten teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of pre-k funding for the schools.

13. Jane Richardson, 1340 Braddock Place, an early childhood education teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of pre-k funding for the schools.

14. Alan Dinsmore, 205 Aspen Street, representing the Commission on Aging, spoke of Council moving expeditiously on the consolidation of programs with the Charles Houston Center and moving to restore the funding of staff and programming at the Center; the dental program and restoration of funds in the amount of $57,914 for the program; and the complete street programs funding in the CIP in the amount of $557,000, which may not be sufficient for continuation of the pedestrian safe streets.

15. Janice Grenadier, 15 W. Spring Street, spoke of her illegal jailing and torture in Alexandria, and she spoke of the City Attorney's writing of a report on the reporting of misconduct of a Judge.

16. Dorothea Peters, 4513 Peacock Avenue, spoke about the Patrick Henry School and Rec Center, thanking the School Board for telling the architect not to have access on Latham and she spoke of option 1-A/D, which allowed access onto Latham. She said she was concerned about re-districting schools in Alexandria and asked for support of option 1-A.

17. Jody Manor, 103 N. Alfred Street, owner of Bittersweet, said their main street is under stress and there are declining sales tax revenue. He said the commercial building Bittersweet is in has declined in value over the last eight years, and that should be a grave concern, noting that 20 businesses have closed in the last year. He said they need to look at solutions, and they need to look at a public/private partnership that gets everything to work together, and a professional study needs to be made of how the assets can work together and there needs to be money in the budget for that study.

18. Liz Parker, 700 N. Latham Street, a member of the Patrick Henry Advisory Group, spoke of the plan for a driveway and parking lot on Latham Street. She said the School Board voted unanimously to limit design options to emergency only access on Latham Street. After that, in the community advisory meeting, the project team discussed trade-offs, and she urged Council to support the School Board decision for only emergency access on Latham Street.

19. Linda Hauenstein, 4807 Peacock Avenue, spoke of the Patrick Henry project, noting that option A was the overwhelming favorite from the community, and there is a new option 1-A which includes bus access on Latham, and she said neighbors oppose option 1-A over concerns about safety issues for the children. She noted they applaud the School Board decision that only access be allowed for emergency vehicles.

20. Basim Khan, 2 E. Glebe Road, executive director, Neighborhood Health, spoke in support of the Casey Clinic, noting that in 2004, they served 1,900 residents and now serve 7,500 low-income residents. He said they serve about 3 out of 4 Alexandrians living in poverty, and the goal is to serve all the residents.

21. Carol James, N. Vail Street, spoke of open space at Patrick Henry, stating that the new A-1 plan further reduces the green space at the site. She noted that the community pointed out to the consultant that they removed green space, and they were told they were planting a row of trees, but she said landscaping is not open space and does not promote recreational use. She said the site proposal is inconsistent with the City's own needs assessments, which stipulates people want open space, and that is their number one concern.

22. Bert Ely, 200 S. Pitt Street, on behalf of the Old Town Civic Association, spoke of the concerns of a possible creation of business improvement districts (BID) in the City, noting that it is a special tax district in a defined geographical area. He said a key motivation from some in organizing a waterfront/King Street BID arises from dissatisfaction with the quality of City services along King Street and along the waterfront. Mr. Ely went over numerous questions Council should consider before authorizing any BID.

23. Brittany Pierce Lipinski, S. Glebe Road, an early childhood special education teacher with ACPS, spoke in support of pre-k funding.

24. Jeannie Frank, 3700 Fort Worth Avenue, spoke of the planning for street striping on Ft. Williams Parkway for bike lanes, parking places and crosswalks and have been told it would be done as soon as resurfacing programs is completed in the Spring, and she and her husband oppose the striping.

25. Jack Sullivan, 4300 Ivanhoe Place, representing the Seminary Hill Association, spoke to the expansion of Patrick Henry and the Rec Center and the issues - the subtle change in option A and A-1, and to the turfing of the fields. He said a study said that in the long run, turf fields are more expensive than natural grass, so accepting figures that turf is less expensive in the short-term isn't necessarily so.

26. Jerusalem Brown, 1306 Madison Street, spoke of the ECLI program and thanked Council for funding the Hopkins House ECLI program and investing in human services.

27. Merhawit Gebremedhin, 4291 Seminary Road, #307, spoke of the ECLI program at Hopkins House and thanked Council for investing in human services.

28. Marivel Meruvia, 3321 Slade Court, spoke of the ECLI program at Hopkins House and thanked Council for investing in human services.

29. Cory Pena, 307 Buchanan Street, spoke of her concern for the pre-k center and that it would remove 400 at-risk students from their neighborhood and put them in a pre-k center outside of their neighborhood in order to alleviate overcrowding.

30. Julie Jakopic, 3210 Landover Street, spoke to Hopkins House Early Childhood Learning Institute and to the problem with putting 400 students in one building, noting that they need the little kids to get everything they need.

31. Emma Garcia, 205 S. Whiting Street, spoke of support for investments in human services and said she participates in SCAN's parenting class and noted how it's helped her with her parenting skills.

32. Glenda Salmeron, 5249 Duke Street, Suite 308, spoke of how her life is better because of Council's investment in human services and the help she received when she was pregnant and as a new parent.

33. Eby Aka, 4744 Kenmore Avenue, #202, thanked Council for the great job they have done through the years for the early childhood programs.

34. Hamid Mitchell, 6034 Morgan Court, spoke of the investment in human services, noting that he is a past participant in PLTI and SCAN.

35. Joan Drury, N. Royal Street, spoke of the ethics discussion from past Tuesday's meeting, and she said it's not about Council's ethics, but the ethical decision making based on values of the citizens. She also spoke to the traffic impact studies and she said her question is does building development and increasing density and height in new development overshadow public safety.

36. Richard Merritt, 2729 Franklin Court, spoke in support of the one cent increase in property tax, as co-chair of the Alliance for Alexandria's Uninsured, noting that the General Assembly has shut the door on expanding the Medicaid program. He asked Council to make a significant investment in improving access to primary care services for those citizens that are not being cared for in health insurance.

37. Dolores Viehman, 1309 Prince Street, spoke on behalf of Senior Services of Alexandria to speak to the importance of human service organizations and of the senior clients they serve through the Meals on Wheels program.

38. Dan Hawkins, 1405 Roundhouse Lane, #301, the other co-chair for the Alliance for Alexandria's Uninsured, spoke of the concern for the unmet health care needs of the poor and underserved residents of the City and spoke of the health fair that was held with no City funding. He said they request that the City invest more funding to improve funding for primary care services.

39. Stacy Chittick, 108 Lake Cook Drive, said she is a parent and is a PTA president and spoke in support of fully funding the ACPS budget.

40. Kelli Back, 417 Earl Street, spoke on behalf of Washington United Methodist Church and as a member of the Alliance for Alexandria's Uninsured, in support of using revenue from a tax increase for increased access to primary care services for the City's most vulnerable residents.

41. Jamie Conrad, 107 W. Maple Street, said he and his wife attend Emmanuel Church on the Hill and he said he is co-chair of his church's outreach committee who decides which charities and causes get money they generate from their pumpkin sales. He spoke to the need for expansion of Medicaid to provide health insurance for the working poor and for three years the General Assembly has turned its back on these people. He said the Alliance for Alexandria's Uninsured have worked to raise funds but it is not enough. He said allocating four percent of the proposed one cent increase could make a difference in a lot of lives.

42. Robert Dugger, 10 Wolfe Street, spoke in support of pre-k education funding, noting that nothing raises the per capita income for a region better than high quality child care, and he asked Council to convene all the City's non and for profit public and church child care providers and develop a plan on how to use the early care and learning professionals to open new facilities to handle the 400 kids they are concerned about.

43. Gregory Sepper, 104 Cameron Mews, spoke in support of investment in human services needs, noting he works at Carpenter's Shelter, and he spoke of the homeless and their work in helping those individuals.

44. Gwendolyn Lewis, 4950 Brenman Park Drive, #110, said she is a member of the Children, Youth and Families Collaborative Commission, and the founder of the Concerned Citizens Network of Alexandria, and she said their mission is to empower an increased student achievement and reduce the drop out rate in City schools. She said to improve the graduation rates among black and hispanic students, the City and ACPS should support the expansion of programs that address issues that contribute to dropping out of high school.

45. David Kaplan, 418 Queen Street, spoke about the maximum tax rate, and he spoke to the back-log of projects in the CIP and said setting the tax rate that funds capital investments is the prudent and responsible thing to do. He spoke to the complete streets program, which is funded in the CIP, and asked for support of the bike and pedestrian master plan.
